Diamond Spectacles.

THESE SPECTACLES are manufactured from "MINUTE CRYSTAL PEBBLES" melted together, and are called Diamond on account of their hardness and brilliancy. It is well known that spectacles cut from Brazilian or Scotch pebbles are very injurious to the eye, because of their polarizing light. Having been tested with the polariscope, the diamond lenses have been found to admit fifteen per cent. less heated rays than any other pebble. They are ground with great scientific accuracy, are free from chromatic aberrations, and produce a brightness and distinctness of vision not before attained in spectacles.
Manufactured by the Spencer Optical Manufacturing Comp Now York. For sale by responsible agents in every city in the Union. H. A. HEATH & CO., Jewelers and Opticians, are sole Agents for Newport, R. MONDAY, MARCH, 16, 1874.

MARCH.

March. Its tree, Juniper. Its stone, Blood-stone. Its motto, "Courage and strength in the times of danger." Old Saying.

In the gray dawning across the white lake,
Where the ice-hummocks in frozen waves break,
'Mid the glittering spears of the far Northern Lights,
Like a cavalry escort of steel-coated knights,
Spanning the winter's cold graff with an arch,
Over it, rampant, rides in the wild March.
Galloping, galloping, rolling in,
Into the world with a stir and a din,
The north wind, the east wind, and west wind together,
Inbringing, inbringing the March's wild weather.

Hear his rough chant as he dashes along:
"Ho, ye March children, come list to my song!
A bold outlaw am I both to do and to dare,
And I fear not old Earth nor the Powers of the Air.
Winter's a dotard, and Summer's a prude,
But Spring loves me well, although I am rude;
Faltering, lingering, listening Spring
Blushing she waits for the clang and the ring
Of my swift lover's hoofs; then forward she presses,
Repelling, returning, his lordly caresses.

"The winds are unbound and loose in the sky,
Racing, frolicking, merry, on high;
Are ye able to cope with the North Wind's strong arm?
Welcome boldly his fierce grasp; 'twill do ye no harm,
He knows the children of March are my own,
Sealed with my signet of ruby blood-stone,
Blood-stone, red blood-stone, green dark and red light—
Blood is for ardor and stern is for might;
And the watch-word borne on by West Wind the ranger,
Is, "Courage and strength in the moment of danger."

"Children of March, are ye strong, are ye strong?
Shame not the flag the West Wind bears along;
O ye men of the March! be firm as the steel;
O ye women of March! be ye loyal and leal—
Strong in your loving and strong in your hate,
Constant, like Juniper, early and late,
Juniper, Juniper, Juniper green,
Berries of blue set in glittering sheen,
In the Winter's cold snow, in Summer's hot splendor,
Unchanging, unchanging, O ever art true and tender!"

Singing of Juniper, forward he whirled,
Galloping, galloping on through the world;
And when, shivering, waking, the dull Day gazed out
From her tower in the grey clouds, she heard but the shout
Of the riotous wights as they followed in glee,
Out on to the wooing in mad revelry,
Wooing, the wooing, the wooing of Spring—
Here a bold wooing that wakes the woods ring,
And thrills the leaf buds, though with snow overladen;
As March, the wild outlaw, bears off the Spring maiden.

(Constance F. Woolson.

WOODCOCK SHOOTING.

"Breakfast by cock-light, mind. Hunter's beef, and any amount of eggs and bacon. Rowe, the huntsman, will throw up a handful of dust to your window, and get the kettle boiling, so you can steal away and none be the wiser; only be sure to turn out at once, or we shall never get to work."

The gentleman to be called thus early was to arrive by the night coach from a successful matriculation at Oxford, and Rawe—or as he was more generally styled, Rawe—was the huntsman, who filled up his time by shooting on non-hunting days. Rawe, although a knowing hand enough with a pack of foxhounds, was a very mumb performer with a gun, and was always glad of my extra assistance towards making a decent bag, and keeping on terms with a not very exacting master. He appeared to think that the more dogs he could get together, as ours was a rough country, the better; and under this idea had "cleared" every cur he could find about, and locked them all up in a loose horse box over night.

Punctual to a minute five sharp our Uxonian arrived. Our breakfast was soon despatched—and the ice-regenerate collect on of nondescripts turned loose. Some bolted, some fought like Trojans, some were coaxed into remaining, and all made a row perfectly hideous, and did the very thing we did not want—woke up the entire household of our highly respected and wealthy uncle.

"Where's Dandy, Rawe?"

But the question was superfluous. Rawe never went shooting without Dandy, a strapping great liver-and-white spaniel, who was his very alter ego in all but speech, having an enormous capacity of stomach and a beautifully absorbent system. Dandy was always right, no matter what errors he might be committing, nor how much praise ought to have been bestowed on others.

"O, here's old Dan," says Rawe; "never fear; and two more as fine young spaunles as need to be."

"Better try up the river, old and then into Jew's Wood?"

"Sure to find a cock in Jew's Wood, if not afore; only I'm afeard I'll never bring 'em down. Never could shoot a cock in my life; and if I don't bring home three or four today it'll be as much as my place is worth, for the master jaw'd me like a pickpocket last time, and he wants a cock or two for a friend had."

"Mark, cock!"

Bang! bang! went both Rawe's barrels without the slightest effect; a fine woodcock being sprung near the river, and flying into the thickest part of Jew's Wood. We marked him down accurately, and made arrangements for circumventing him safely next time of asking.

"Take the gun, sir, for dear mercy's sake!" says Rawe; "'tis a real pity to miss this bird, and I shall be sure to do the same again, and this gentleman here can't see a stim."

But having no certificate, I had faithfully promised my relative and host, from whom I had "great expectations," that nothing should induce me to assist Rawe, as there were numbers of disaffected men about too ready to inform against anybody connected with the "big house," because the proprietor of that establishment had been "down upon them" for poaching, to a rare tune, on more than one memorable occasion. But who can resist the temptation of a shot at a woodcock, marked-in to a yard or two in the seclusion of a wood?

"Give me the gun, then, Rawe, you duffer and come on by my side, for old Dan will never push him up without you."

We had pretty well shaken off the cocktail curs by this time, and the "spaunles" had it all to themselves, but Dan was always within a hundred yards of Rawe, and like Cornelia, his voice

"was ever soft;
Gentle, and low, an excellent thing in"—Spaniel,

The woodcock rose just where we expected, and bending towards the river, offered a rather quick shot, which any tolerable marksman would not have missed. Rawe, in his delight at the kill, was bolting off to capture the booty, but unfortunately I volunteered that service, and insisted upon his taking the gun again in case of accidents.

He had hardly done so, and was preparing to reload, when there sprang out upon our group a gentleman by the name of Doney, one of the most inveterate poachers of the whole countryside, and who had experienced the utmost rigor of the law, under my uncle's administration, too often not to cause him to wish to retaliate on the first opportunity. What he wandering in the wood must ever remain a mystery, though I have my own misgivings that Rawe's loquacity about the "young man from Oxford," and "master's nephey," going out shooting, are in some measure responsible for Mr. Doney's presence on this momentous occasion. But it is easy to render a plausible excuse for being discovered in a wood at an unseasonable hour among the aboriginal natives. Gathering nuts, picking blackberries, collecting firewood, can all be alleged as a substantial reason on the instant by an old poacher, with anything like a genius for invention. Moreover, Rawe was not born under the planet of St. Mary Axe, and was easily mollified with any attempt at explanation.

The woodcock was hard, and woodcocks were not lying much in thick covert, and we thought it good policy to get to the water again, and try up the bottom of the wood, where there were some firs and hollies. A woodcock is remarkably fond of a locality of this description, and the neighborhood of a holly-bush it an especial attraction for him.

The poacher thought it prudent to levant, as he had taken nothing by his motion; for he probably considered that if his actions were watched "with half the zeal that he had served" us, they would hardly prove reconcilable with his explanation to Rawe.

"Cock, Dan! Good dog, Dandy! Look out, sir, he's coming out."

Bang! bang! go Rawe and the Oxonian together.

"Mark! mark!" shout they frantically, well knowing the effect of their discharge upon the woodcock.

We contrived to mark the bird down pretty accurately again, and the entreaties became pressing that I would have another shot, so that there might be a brace of "the real article," as the huntsman phrased it, to show to master. The case was one of necessity, and there was no use in refusing when friends were so urgent. I prepared to use Rawe's gun again, upon the understanding that the strictest secrecy should be observed, until the Squire would be likely to hear of my disobedience with temper and reason. But why does Rawe "bang fire" in the wood?

"Come in, sir," cries he at last; "for I shall never get out of this again."

A perfect avalanche of snow had come down upon him from the fir-tops, and he lay at his length, or rather sat doubled up in an unrecognized attitude, in a sort of trench.

"Where's the gun?

"Oh, there, there! If it had not been for the gun I never could have got out of this perhaps; but now, if ever I do get out, I have caught the rheumatism for all my days, and my death too, I expect."

And he was accustomed to

"Beware of colds, catarrhs, and toothache, got By thin-soled shoes;"

for his exterior showed that every reasonable precaution had been taken to prevent an occurrence of these calamities. But the gun had been suffered to fall clean under water in Rawe's attempt to save a tumble. The suspicion was not unnaturally aroused that this was a premeditated accident, and a decent ruse for getting out of more shooting failures for the day. The gun proved utterly useless for any practical purpose, as we found to our rest some time afterwards. For the moment, however, resort was had to my friend's gun, who was only too glad of an opportunity of getting out of an exhibition before the huntsman. As we wended our way up the old gully, and drew near the spot where the bird was located, Rawe suddenly exclaimed that he saw the woodcock, and diligently collected the "spaunles" and the redoubtable Dandy about him, while I made for the bird, which I could not see. The woodcock fell rather too much shattered for good workmanship, but that was the merest trifle in our estimation. It was now time to do something with the damaged gun, and we got it into a condition which we thought warranted a reloading.

A teal—that most delicate dainty of the duck tribe, "whose delicacy of flesh, and the wholesome nourishment it affords," as says the learned Willoughby, "doth deservedly challenge for it the first place among those of its kind"—was then shot famously by my friend, who was perfectly astonished at his own handiwork, having having never bagged a bird of the kind before. But the teal is the most foolish also of the duck tribe; but this was a fact which I did not think it worth while to mention at the moment.

It is not often you can get a shot at golden plover, unless you resort to the practice of stratagem or ambuscading. But a whole flock of them "rounded" Rawe almost immediately after the death of the teal; and if his gun had not snapped both barrels, muff as he was, he could not have failed to bring down several fine birds. It was very vexing, for plovers form "a dainty dish to set before the king," and these birds came round with the wind, the leading lads turning until they formed a double row with the tail, and in such a manner as one sees about three or four times in a lifetime. If we could have bagged some of these, our affairs would have begun to look quite favorable again, because, to have killed two woodcocks, in a country where they are scarce, and unusually difficult to shoot, might be thought "none so dusky." But we shot now "turn and turn about" with the only available gun, and did very fair exhibition among the snipe, and shot a rabbit or two.

There is one little jack snipe, I believe not difficult to be found on the moor at this moment, which I do not think it is in the power of man to shoot. He has been popped at by many visitors, but all acknowledged their inability to bring him down; and this is probably from a habit he has of flying towards your face, thus making a difficult shot. My friend had a shot at him, as usual without ruffling a feather; and he remains for practice for any unfledged sportsman who may fancy trying his hand on a piece of rare raw material; and as among that class of individual all geese are swans, the fortunate killer may talk of him as a woodcock. "We met," says a sportsman in a well-known publication, "with an unfledged sportsman, who naively remarked he came out principally to redeem his pledge to his wife, that he would bring her home a woodcock. He had, he said, already followed one for nearly a week, and although he had every day got a shot, and one day two shots at him, he was always foiled. He, however, consoled himself that he should that day go home with a better grace, for although he could not fulfil the whole, he could the half of his promise, for he had shot a snipe."

Coming near a dilapidated farmhouse, it occurred to Rawe that the farmer, whom he knew, would lend us his gun for the day. The farmer had no objection, and took the damaged article to keep until called for. We calculated without our host once more, for this farmer was anything rather than friendly disposed towards our party, and thought he saw a fine opportunity of doing the squire a bad turn. He knew we should try for a cock handy by his premises, and even went so far as to tell us the most likely spot where to find one at home. He evidently had calculated, knowing Rawe's inability with a gun, that I had been taking a stray shot or two, and thought what a grand thing it would be to catch me in this act red handed. For this purpose he ensconced himself—after bidding us "good morning," and wishing us good sport—in an old ditch, or gully; but unfortunately for his strategy and stratagem, my friend missed another cock which he marked right in the wake of this fellow. The man was obliged to turn about in his den, and the bird, on being flushed the second time, flew just over him; and the near sightedness of my friend—who did not kill his bird—led to consequences disastrous to his purse and to the farmer's person. This was another marvellously narrow escape for me; but the farmer's barns were healed for a matter of a sovreign, not withstanding his dastardly conduct.

MONDAY, MARCH 16, 1874.

The funeral of Charles Sumner occurs today at Boston.

The New York assembly has passed a law exempting bank tellers from jury duty.

Gov. Washburn of Massachusetts has appointed Thursday, the second day of April, as a day of fasting and prayer.

Gen. Burnside seems to be gaining in popularity as a candidate for U. S. Senator. If he is elected we shall be sure of an honest man.

We would suggest that in making up a ticket for school committee this Spring the claims of the ladies be considered and that one or more be chosen. There are those among us who would make most efficient officers.

The new story by Jules Verne, now appearing in the Magazin d'Education et de Récreation, entitled "The Mysterious Island," will be begun in the April number of St. Nicholas and continued throughout the year.

The Christian at Work, edited by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage will be published after March 19th by Horatio C. King. The paper is in a flourishing condition and Mr. King's connection with it is an additional guaranty of its success. Mr. Marshal H. Bright retains his connection with the editorial department.

A correspondent of the New Bedford Standard thinks that the one thing needful in Massachusetts is a praying band of one hundred women to call at the executive office in the State House daily and pray for Gov. Washburn. When the governor was first inaugurated he expressed the hope that his arm would be "long enough and strong enough to forever close every grog shop in Massachusetts" but unfortunately it doesn't reach a hundred rods from his executive office at present.

A FAT CONTRACT.

It is a point not so widely understood as it ought to be that the act of Congress under which the famous Sanborn was appointed authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to contract with three persons to assist the regular officials in collecting delinquent taxes. But in spite of the plain letter of the law, Secretaries Boutwell and Richardson both addressed letters to their subordinates directing the latter to assist Sanborn. This man was appointed to collect taxes that the regular officials were ignorant of and then he is authorized to search the collector's books for information and employ on his own cases the regular officials of the department who are hired to serve the government. It is a notorious fact that in several instances he has taken his fifty per cent. out of taxes that the regular officials were able to collect and that were actually in process of collection before he interfered. It seems to us that it makes a difference whether Sanborn is to assist the government to collect its revenues or whether the government is to assist Sanborn to make over $100,000 a year.

The Washington National Republican says that Butler has fully substantiated the propriety of the collection of delinquent taxes for which provision was made in the Sanborn contracts, and that Mr. Foster will not press his bill for a repeal. We would like to know what is the propriety of dividing all this work among three men. If it is the government and not certain private parties who are to be benefited why should there not be one Sanborn for each state or collection district? What is the propriety of giving the fortunate triumvirate fifty per cent. when experience proves that they would be handsomely rewarded by ten per cent.? What is the propriety of allowing them to take any percentage out of taxes that the regular officers could collect?

Sanborn and Supervisor Hawley are now under indictment for defrauding the government. Without examining the evidence against them it is clear that their opportunities for fraud were magnificent. Hawley is hired by the government to serve it and is directed by Messrs. Boutwell and Richardson to serve Sanborn. Out of his fifty per cent. Sanborn could easily afford to give Hawley a handsome bonus. Hawley then doesn't do any collecting directly for the government but devotes his energies to aiding Sanborn. The result is that the government is simply cheated out of Sanborn's fifty per cent. in cases that Hawley could attend to and was paid for attending to. Perhaps Butler can "fully substantiate the propriety" of a system that directly fosters such chicanery as this. It is by no means impossible that Sanborn's fifty per cent. is reduced by contributions to another than Hawley or the Treasury officials. Butler himself has received some large "counsel fees" from those informers and special agents whom he so vigorously defends and possibly he is a silent partner of John D. Sanborn.

CLOTHES.

A man in this last third of the nineteenth century may well say that his lines have fallen in hard places. He is not only accused of tyranny but of what is far worse, stupidity. Except in the physical world he is hopelessly vanquished by the subjected woman whenever and wherever he comes in contact with her. But this is not the end. Worse than all else Dr. Abba D. Woolson comes forward and declares that man, in his style of dress, has offended the eyes of the subjected woman and has made himself as hideous as possible.

It is a sad thought that magna charta and the declaration of independence have achieved so little for the race (that is, for men,) that men may now be openly charged with making themselves hideous and with being offensive in appearance. It is bad enough that there are men so constituted that they are unhappy unless abusing the clothes worn by their wives and sisters, but there is some excuse for this because the ladies themselves confess occasionally that their garments are not entirely conducive to health, and are apt to be rather bewildering in their complexity. But why should Dr. Abba D. Woolson revenge her sex for the attacks of Dr. Dio Lewis by calling men's clothes offensive and even hideous?

A man's garb is certainly favorable to health, it is simple, convenient and—offensively plain Dr. Abba says. She thinks a man ought to wear trimmings and bright colors. She mentions the little quills stuck into the hat band, a la Yankee Doodle, by some gorgeous youths, as a hopeful sign of a more elegant dress to be worn by the coming man. Probably she would approve of a box plait on the coat cuff, fringe at the bottom of the vest and a lace shirt front. She may have a weakness for buttons of a gigantic size, but we hope not, for a gentleman couldn't get two buttons of the first magnitude on the back of his coat.

This dreadful medica goes on to insinuate plainly that there is nothing poetical about pantaloons. She says it may be seen from Herrick that even the petticoat may serve as a poetic term, as in the lines:

> "Her feet beneath her petticoat,
> Like little mice, stole in and out
> As if they feared the light."

But no poet, however aspiring, has began a song with such words as

> "His boots beneath his pantaloons,
> Like"——

Well, we never looked at it in that light before. But she is probably right. The difficulty might perhaps be remedied by making the pantaloons very large at the bottoms so as to allow the feet to steal. Even then there would seem to be something ludicrous, not to say sarcastic, in comparing a gentleman's number nine clad in a substantial boot, to a little mouse. We confess that regarded poetically there are serious objections to a man's feet and pantaloons and yet we protest to this daughter of Æsculapius that we don't want any trimming on ours.

PERSONALS.

.....Jeff. Davis is in England: his health continues poor.

.....Rear-Admiral Joseph Lanman, of the U. S. navy, died at his residence in Norwich Friday, aged 63.

.....Mahomet's character has been vindicated by his followers in Bombay from an attack made upon it by a Parsee editor.

.....The appraisers of Cyrus Wakefield's estate have concluded their labors and render his assets at $4,411,000, and his liabilities at $3,750,000—a nominal surplus of $661,000.

.....The American Steamship Company has passed a vote of thanks to Capt. Brady for safely bringing the steamship Pennsylvania into port, and voted him $1000 as an earnest of their appreciation of his services.

.....State Senator Green, of Illinois, ought to be promoted. His private affairs called him away from his seat for nearly a month. On his return he refused to take his salary for that time, but had it returned to the state treasury.

.....The author of "Ginx's Baby" has struck a streak of good luck. He has been elected to Parliament by a good round majority, and this has been followed by his appointment to the post of agent of the Dominion government for emigration and other purposes in London. The salary of his office can scarcely be less than four or five thousand dollars per annum, besides the status it must give him in the House of Commons.

.....M. Michelet was buried at Hyeres. He had a "civil" funeral—that is to say, no clergyman was present. M. Long, mayor of the town, received the body on its arrival at the cemetery. M. Allegre, mayor of Toulon, then deposited on the coffin a crown of immortelles, saying as he did so to M. Michelet's widow, "Madame, I place this crown on the coffin of a man who was the most complete expression of our national genius." Three other crowns were presented by some of his literary friends.

.....Mr. John G. Whittier and the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher are among the personal friends of the late Charles Sumner who have written letters of sympathy to the family in Boston. Mr. Whittier says: "The dear and noble Sumner! My heart is too full for words, and in deepest sympathy of sorrow I reach out my hands to thee, who loved him so well. He has died as he wished to, at his post of duty, and when the heart of his beloved Massachusetts was turned towards him with more than the old-time love and reverence. God's peace be with him!"

.....Of the late Charles Sumner's family the Boston Journal gives these facts: "Senator Sumner was the son of Sheriff Charles P. Sumner, a well-known and respected citizen. He had two sisters, Mary and Julia, and three brothers Albert, Henry and George. The only survivor of these brothers and sisters is Julia, now Mrs. Dr. Hastings, a resident of California. Two of the brothers were lost at sea; one at the same time that Margaret Fuller Ossoli met her sad fate. George died in a hospital from softening of the brain. On the 17th of October, 1866, the Senator married Mrs. Alice Hooper, widow of William Sturgis Hooper, who was a son of Samuel Hooper. Mrs. Hooper was a daughter of Johnathan Mason. The marriage ceremony was performed by the late Bishop Eastburn. On the 10th of May, 1873, a divorce was decreed between the parties by Judge Colt, of the supreme court of Massachusetts.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO.—Here is the way a farmer's daughter in Concord, Mass., made money in the poultry business: She commenced with about 60 fowls in the Spring. From these she raised 450 chickens. When young she fed on cracked corn, but when fattening them, gave whole corn and Indian meal. During the season she sold eggs to the amount of $90, and from September 20 to January 17 she got ready for market 150 pairs of chickens, which she sold for $260, making in all $350. It will be seen from this statement what may be done by proper attention to poultry, the profit being perhaps greater than in almost any branch of farming. It also shows that the business is one in which females may engage with success. The time occupied in caring for sixty to a hundred hens does not average more than an hour or two a day. The exercise is light and pleasant and the change from household duties rather agreeable than otherwise.

Jerry Sullivan, aged 18 years, was arrested yesterday by Capt. Hammond and officer Steele for the burglary of a silver watch and $12 in money from the office of Dr. Greene, on Thames street. It appears Jerry was a patient of the doctor's and knew just where the articles he wanted were to be found. Dr. Greene immediately communicated his suspicions to the police. Jerry will be permitted to tell what he knows about it tomorrow at the justice court.

MARINE DISASTER.

The revenue cutter Moccasin, Lt. Irish, arrived here Saturday evening, and reports, that Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, the schooner Palma, Butler, master, of New York, from Jacksonville, loaded with hard pine lumber for Norwich, Conn., went ashore at Sow and Figs. It appears the schooner took the heavy westerly gales off Cape Hatteras and sprang a leak which necessitated the constant labor of the crew at the pumps. The men were completely worn out, and the captain, though well aware of the position of the vessel in Vineyard sound, could not wear clear of the rocks at Sow and Figs.

The crew were landed by the lighthouse keeper at Cuttyhunk, where the captain now is dangerously ill. The Moccasin hooked on to the vessel Saturday evening, but was unable to start her, a round rock being driven through her bottom. The vessel is now in the hands of the wreckers who have stripped her of all her running and standing gear, together with the sails, and the vessel will doubtless go to pieces. We believe the cargo is insured in a New York office.

The officers of the Moccasin say that the Cuttyhunk wreckers are more rapacious than their professional brethren of the West Indies. The Palma was stripped of everything. The Cuttyhunkers even took out the doors and the dead lights and brought to mind the famous thief who not content with stealing a saw mill went back after the pond.

IN MEMORIAM.

SERVICES YESTERDAY AT THE UNION CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH IN MEMORY OF THE LATE SENATOR CHARLES SUMNER.

Yesterday afternoon at the Union Congregational church the pulpit and gallery were draped with festoons of black and white. The Rev. Mahlon Van Horne preached a sermon in memory of the late Charles Sumner. He took for his text Acts X:28, "And he said unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation; but God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean."

On account of the advantages which the Jews possessed they deemed themselves more noble than any other race and held themselves aloof from their neighbors whom they regarded as barbarians. They even refused to have any ordinary intercourse with those whom they considered their inferiors, so much so that the disciples wondered when they found Christ even talking with the woman of Samaria. But the Christian religion regards all men alike and a vision from heaven taught Peter that he was to call no man common or unclean. The new dispensation revealed the truth that the possession of an immortal soul is what distinguishes a man from a brute, and that all who possess a soul are made in God's image and, before him, are all equal.

The golden rule is an epitome of the whole Gospel rule of life so far as the human race is concerned, and it utterly forbids the narrowness and prejudice that enveloped the proud children of Abraham. The history of the world shows the bad effects of hatred and injustice between sections and races and the importance of free intercourse and respect and consideration between men of all races and climes.

There never lived a more earnest and consistent advocate for the common rights of all mankind than Charles Sumner. His whole life was devoted to the protection of the colored race and even on his death bed he did not forget the civil rights of this race. But his sympathies were not restricted. His love for humanity was so broad that it embraced the whole human race and he was ever ready to defend the oppressed. His memory will be fresh in the minds of men long after the man who signed the infamous fugitive slave law, and who was last week carried to his grave, is forgotten.

Even Mr. Lincoln, whom the speaker could not name without the deepest reverence, had at first but a very limited idea of freedom, but Mr. Sumner had from the first a deep inspiration of the meaning of true liberty. There are many men who protest their friendship for the colored race, but Mr. Sumner dared be its friend when he had no party to support him and when his course involved contumely and reproach. Certainly the colored race will not let their benefactor's memory be dishonored.

To the young Charles Sumner was an admirable model. He never did a dishonorable act. His enemies confess that he was without spot. His career was not characterized by policy, but from first to last he was actuated by a high moral principle. May we all be enabled to profit by the example of this man who lived so pure a life and who devoted all his energies to the welfare of the human race.

STATE MISCELLANY.

Many of the South Kingstown fishermen are making extensive preparations for a raid on the cod fish as soon as the weather will permit. Buckeyes have appeared in the Salt Pond, and the buckeye fishermen are getting ready for business.

A fire Friday in a wooden building on Westminster street, Providence, owned by Rufus Waterman, gutted Smith's bar-room and the office of Atwood's Bitters, and damaged by water the stock of Wm. McDonald, merchant tailor, on which there was $1000 insurance. Loss not heavy.

A large audience assembled in Vaughn's Hall in Wickford village Friday evening to hear addresses upon the subject of temperance from Messrs. Wm. D. Hilton, J. Frank Daly and Rev. H. W. Conant. Asa Sisson occupied the chair, and Rev. Dr. Williams of that place offered prayer.

SANDWICH.—Many of our readers will be interested to learn that a season of religious awakening is now going on in Sandwich, such as has seldom if ever been witnessed there, in the M. E. Church, of which Rev. John Livesey, formerly of the Allen Street Church of this city, is pastor. The meetings have been held nearly every evening since the week of prayer, and with great results. The church has been gloriously revived, and thus far over 100 others have been at the altar seeking pardon for sin. Of this number 74 have professed conversion and 54 have already joined the church on probation, and others are waiting to follow. Of the number of those joined 28 are reported as head of families. Within a week the work has taken a new start and 27 new cases are reported as inquiring the way. On Sunday last a praying band was present from South Boston and had charge of the services during the day and evening. The attendance was very large and the interest intense. [New Bedford Standard.

DIGHTON.—Mr. George F. Gavitt, in connection with a Boston party, has purchased the Pipe Mill of the Dighton Furnace Company. The new company is to be known as the Dighton Pipe Works. A new wheel is to be put in at once and other improvements made, when the mill will start up on full time. James H. Codding has been elected Treasurer of the Dighton Furnace Company, in place of Mr. Gavitt, who resigned to take charge of the new enterprise. [New Bedford Standard.

SENATOR SUMNER'S WILL.

In September, 1872, just before Senator Sumner left for Europe, he wrote in his own hand his will. He bequeathed all his papers, manuscripts and letter books to Henry W. Longfellow, Francis E. Balch and Edward L. Pierce as trustees; all his books and autographs to the library of Harvard College; his bronzes to his friends of many years, Henry W. Longfellow and Dr. Samuel G. Howe. He gives to the city of Boston, for the Art Museum, his pictures and engravings exept the picture of the "Miracle of the Slave," which is bequeathed to his friend Joshua B. Smith of Boston. To Mrs. Hannah Richmond Jacobs, the only surviving sister of his mother, he gives an annuity of $500. There is a bequest of $2000 to the daughters of Henry W. Longfellow; $2000 to the daughters of Dr. Samuel G. Howe, and $2000 to the daughters of James T. Furness of Philadelphia, "which" he says, "I ask them to accept, in token of gratitude, for the friendship their parents have shown me." The will directs that the residue of his estate shall be distributed in two equal moieties; one moiety to his sister, Mrs. Julia Hastings of San Francisco, Cal., the other moiety to the President and fellows of Harvard, in trust for the benefit of the college library, the income to be applied to the purchase of books. In reference to this last moiety the will adds: "This bequest is made in filial regard to the college. In selecting, especially the library, I am governed especially by the consideration that all my life I have been a user of books, and, having few of my own, I have relied on the libraries of friends, and on public libraries, so that what I now do is only a return for what I freely received." Francis B. Balch of Boston, formerly clerk to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations when Mr. Sumner was chairman of that committee, is designated as sole executor of the will. Mr. Sumner's estate is valued at $100,000.

SUNDRIES.

Savage saloon keeper—"Let's lick her."

A wag avers that the only thing against William E. Dodge of New York is that he was once a member of Congress.

A New York paper calls attention to the fact that Tweed used to have the same contempt for the press that Butler professes now.

A bank lock, which works by clock-work and can't be opened except at certain hours even by the owners, is one of the latest inventions.

The following atrocious paragraph appears in an exchange:—"Dorothy Williams, of Wyoming, started to walk three miles to church the other Sunday, and they found her torn into about fifty pieces, the result of meeting a bear whose moral character was at a low state."

A writer in a Kansas paper remarks upon the result of the recent election. He says "the fall of corruption has been dispelled, and the wheels of the state government will no longer be trammelled by sharks that have beset the public prosperity like locusts."

"It is true," remarked a pickpocket arrested in Rochester on Wednesday, "that I am a thief. But a legitimate thief, sir; for look you, I was searching that man's pockets for proof of frauds against the government."

A foreign correspondent of the Christian Register says that the ancient ferocity of the Saxons still remains in the instincts of the English. A thorough knock-down is relished there in a way unknown to any but the roughs of America.

A lady lecturer, who has the right to put M. D. after her name, argues that, "because American women are enthusiastic, they are the handsomest women in the world. Foreign women, as a rule, become too stout, are too phlegmatic, too expressionless."

A clergyman, at the examination of the young scholars of his Sunday School, put the following question: "Why did the people of Israel set up a golden calf?" "Because they hadn't money enough to set up an ox," was the reply of a little chap, who took a dollar and cents view of the matter.

The sugar crop of Louisiana is decreasing each year. Before the war it was 221,726 hogsheads of sugar and 15,500,000 gallons of molasses. In 1870, having kept on decreasing after the war, it was 80,700 hogsheads of sugar and 1,500,000 gallons of molasses. The estimate this year fixes at 75,000 hogsheads. Negroes have immigrated into the state largely, but don't work on any large scale, for neither agriculture nor business can prosper without a good, stable government.

One ton (2,000 pounds avoirdupois) of gold or silver contains 29,163 troy ounces, and, therefore, the value of a ton of pure gold is $602,799.21, and of a ton of silver, $37,701.81. A cubic foot of pure gold weighs 1,218.75 pounds avoirdupois; a cubic foot of pure silver weighs 656.25 pounds avoirdupois. One million dollars gold coin weighs 3,685.8 pounds avoirdupois; one million dollars silver coin weighs 58,929.9 pounds avoirdupois. If there is one per cent. of gold or silver in one ton of ore, it contains 291.63 ounces troy, of either of these metals. The average fineness of the Colorado gold is 781 in 1,000 and the natural alloy: gold 781, silver 209, copper 10; total 1,000. The calculations at the mint are made on the basis that 43 ounces of standard gold, or 900 fine (coin) is worth $800 and 31 ounces of silver 900 fine (coin) is worth $12.80.

Perhaps there is no better indication of the growing similarity of English and American ideas than the homogeneity of wit which is springing up between us. Time was when an American could find in the London Punch only food for the most solemn reflection or patient study; time was, too when our homespun humor only provoked a look of disgust upon the rubicund visage of John Bull. But now, nous avons changé tout cela. All England laughs over the witticisms of Artemus Ward, Charles Kingsley talks familiarly of Bret Harte's "Flynn of Virginia," and all our leading American exchanges find no more acceptable or exhilarating beverage to offer their than frequent sippings from the modernized London Punch.

The assembly judiciary committee has a bill before it asking a $50,000 appropriation to pay counsel employed in prosecuting the Tammany Ring suits. Of $71,000 already paid, Lyman Tremain received $25,000; Charles H. Peckham, $21,846; Henry L. Clinton, $5000, and Charles O'Conor, $5000.

Judge Noah Davis says, in a letter to the Evening Post, that the statements of Jayne and Bliss, made relative to him (Davis) are false. Judge Davis says: "Both Bliss and Jayne seem to think that the way to relieve themselves from odium is to throw scandal upon others." He says that he will make a full statement of the Phelps Dodge case before the committee next week.

The fire commissioners of Boston and Cincinnati Thursday night witnessed the promptitude of the department of this city in answering an alarm. The box opposite the St. Nicholas Hotel was struck by Chief Engineer Bates, and within three minutes the engines appeared, and before ten minutes elapsed the block was guarded by the police. A dozen engines were stationed at the hydrants. The insurance patrol and reporters were in attendance, and the whole system made plain. A word from the chief and the whole assemblage disappeared as if by magic.

Whoever has traveled in the West or South knows full well the esteem in which that incomparable preventive and restorative is held throughout those regions. It is literally a domestic staple in the swampy and mephitic localities which lie on the borders of many of our large rivers and in the neighborhood of our southern bayous and lagoons. Now is the time when the inhabitants of all malarious districts should put their systems and constitutions in good defensive trim by a course of this powerful vegetable antidote. By this means the feeblest resident of an unhealthy soil may escape the sickness, which without the aid of this potent ally of nature, will be apt to overtake the strongest. Chills and fever, bilious remittents, constipation, rheumatism, dyspepsia, and many other complaints are frequently brought on by the caprices of temperature and alternations of dry cold and excessive moisture common in our climate at the commencement of spring. Let all who desire to avoid these distressing ailments take the Bitters as a safeguard.

GENERAL NEWS.

NEW YORK.

The Woodhull and Claflin Verdict.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The jury in the Woodhull and Claflin case who have been out since half-past 12 o'clock yesterday, returned into court this morning, with the verdict of not guilty, which was received with cheers. The accused received the verdict with tears of joy. Judge Southerland characterized the verdict as one of the most outrageous he had ever heard. The prisoners and friends were cheered and escorted by the crowd for several blocks from the court house.

The Remains of Sumner.

The body of Sumner, which remained in the gentlemen's parlor of the Fifth avenue Hotel during the night, attended by a detachment of New York police was forwarded to Boston by the ten o'clock train this morning, attended by the full Congressional and friendly delegation, comprising fifty persons. The escort from the hotel to the depot was by members of the Union League Club, notable among whom were well known natives of Boston, now residents of New York, and representing all the great interests of the metropolis.

Eleven to One.

James C. King, convicted of murder in the second degree, was yesterday sentenced to the State Prison at hard labor for life. It appears that the verdict of the jury was a curious compromise made by eleven obstinate jurors in favor of murder in the first degree with one equally obstinate, who would not consent to a verdict which would involve the death penalty. The twelfth juror had his will, for the convicted man received the extremest sentence short of hanging which the law can give.

The Boss Wishes to Change His Hotel.

The friends of William M. Tweed do not mean that he shall remain quietly in his prison home. A motion was made yesterday to transfer him from the penitentiary to the Ludlow street House of Detention or county jail. It was averred that Judge Davis, in sentencing Tweed, mentioned the county jail as the place of confinement, and that after the court adjourned he directed it to be changed to the penitentiary. Tweed now demands that he be taken to the county jail as was directed orally in the sentence. The district attorney contends that the court can change the place of punishment at discretion, and that Judge Davis simply exercised this privilege in sending Mr. Tweed to Blackwell's Island. The point is a new one, and Judge Brady has reserved his decision.

Probable Loss of a Steamship.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Panama advices of the 3d instant state that no news is received there of the steamship Rising Star, and all hope of hearing from her was given up. It will be remembered she put into St. Thomas for repairs.

First Service of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

The first services of the First Reformed Episcopal church since its organization, with the Right Rev. Bishop Cummins as rector, were held this morning. Cards were distributed for the purpose of raising contributions toward procuring a church for the congregation. Bishop Cummins stated that resolutions were in progress to secure a church for worship, which he expected would be constructed about the first of May next.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Proposed Monument to Sumner.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—A movement is on foot among the colored population for the erection of a monument to the great Massachusetts Senator, as a distinctive mark of their gratitude and appreciation. The project is to be forwarded at once, and it is suggested that the site shall be the old Washington slave pen and its vicinity, and the erection thereon of a monument of classic design and magnificent proportions, which will fully and appropriately commemorate the life and the personal sacrifice of the great advocate of emancipation and enfranchisement of four millions of American citizens who were held to servitude.

The Expected Report of the Sanborn Contract.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—A report is expected the coming week from the committee on ways and means upon the Sanborn contract, and possibly upon moieties and Jayne's transactions. Mr. Foster of Ohio has been ready for a week to report a bill repealing the law under which the Sanborn contracts were made, but Sanborn was promised a hearing first, and this has caused delay. He is now present, and will be called early in the week.

There is no foundation whatever for the statements so widely telegraphed, that General Butler succeeded in so fully substantiating the propriety of the collection of delinquent taxes, for which provision was made in the Sanborn contracts, that it is doubtful whether Mr. Foster will press his bill providing for the repeal of the act under which the contract was made. Mr. Foster has been instructed by the committee on ways and means to report this bill and would have no option if he were opposed to it, which he is not.

Economical Collections.

The argument used, and which Butler made so prominent in debate, is that the taxes Sanborn has in hand were outlawed and could have only been collected under such contracts as he held and by such methods as he adopted. The fact is, not one of the cases on his lists were, or can be, outlawed, and Commissioner Douglass is still regularly collecting exactly the same classes of taxes. One of his agents collecting the legacy and succession tax has collected $6000 in the district of New York alone within a few months at an expense of only $750, this being his salary for the time. If the cases thus collected had been upon Sanborn's lists he could have commanded the services of this same man to collect these taxes, and then received half the total amount, or $3000, for doing nothing.

Mr. Sumner's Successor—Butler's Preference and the Reason for it.

The drift of opinion here in regard to the successor to Mr. Sumner is that Mr. Dawes will be able to command the most strength at the start in the legislature. This opinion is based upon the general belief that Butler will throw what influence he can in that direction,—first, for the purpose of clearing the way for the governorship, and next to prevent Judge Hoar from succeeding.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Latest from Gen. Wolseley.

LONDON, March 14.—A despatch has been received at the admiralty office from Cape Coast Castle dated January 22d, saying "all the troops except the Highlanders have re-embarked for home. Gen. Wolseley will embark on the 7th of March. Capt. Glover with 1000 men entered Coomassie two days after Wolseley.

Temperance.

CLEVELAND, March 14.—The women's temperance movement in this city has assumed a practical phase. Yesterday, a large number of ladies assembled at the corridor of one of the principal churches, and after some time spent in prayer and consultation, some fifty started out, and proceeding to different sections of the city, canvassed for signatures to a general pledge, meeting with fair success. An attack upon the saloons will probably be made next week. The crusade continues in most of the neighboring towns, and meets with varying degrees of success, but there seems to be abatement of zeal and determination on the part of the ladies in any quarter.

Frightful Railroad Accident.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—A passenger train going west on the Central Pacific Railroad, between Toano and Wells, was thrown from the track by a broken rail and went over the embankment falling thirty feet. It is reported that the loss of life was very great.

Floods in Nevada. Railroad Tracks washed away.

A dispatch from Palisades states that a great freshet occurred yesterday east of Battle Mountain, and about a mile and a half of the track of the Pacific Railroad had sunk, beside some forty-five yards being washed away. Portions of the road and a culvert were also washed away east of Golconda. Trains have been held until the wrecking trains have repaired the track. There is a heavy thaw in the mountains, causing a flood, which has washed away culverts, and covered the tracks from one to two feet deep with water.

The Summer Obsequies.

BOSTON, March 16.—The scene in and around the state house yesterday was a memorable one, and will never be forgotten by those who saw it. All day long the streets leading to Beacon Hill were thronged with the coming and departing multitudes. When the doors to the Doric Hall, where Charles Sumner's body was lying in state, were opened, the avenue leading to the portico was one dense mass of humanity.

The arrangements which had been made under the supervision of the state police were entirely inadequate for taking care of such a crowd, and the doors had soon to be shut again until something better could be done. It is estimated that nearly fifty thousand persons were in the long column that filed slowly and ceaselessly through Doric Hall from nine o'clock in the morning until six in the evening, and it is estimated that as many turned away unable to gain admission.

Loss of Steamship Glasgow.

LONDON, March 11.—The steamship Glasgow has been wrecked off Tarifa, Spain, and fourteen persons were drowned.

The bark Columbus, from Darien for Waterford, has arrived at Scilly, much damaged.

The Maryland Local Option Bill.

ANNAPOLIS, March 14.—In the Lower House of the Legislature, yesterday, the Local Option bill, which occupied the forenoon session and the entire night session was defeated. A motion to postpone the consideration of the bill until the 6th of April, when the Legislature adjourns, was carried.

PATENT

PARABOLA SPECTACLES.

Constructed in accordance with the Philosophy of Nature.

ADMIRABLY ADAPTED TO THE ORGAN OF SIGHT, AND AFFORDING ALTOGETHER THE BEST ARTIFICIAL

Help to the Human Vision.

The Parabola Glasses can be used for the greatest length of time, either by day or by gaslight, with perfect ease, (when selected to suit the state of the eye,) and never cause that giddiness of the head, or unpleasant sensation to the eyes that many experience from using the common kind, but tend to strengthen and improve the sight.

[From the Rev. Thomas Potter, Norwich Conn.]
Having used a pair of the Parabola Spectacles, I am fully persuaded of their superiority over every other kind, and am confident that the best recommendations are impartial trials. THOMAS POTTER.

[From the Hon. Isaac Hill, late Governor of New Hampshire.]
I have used the Parabola Spectacles for the last three years; and with eyes prematurely injured by severe catarrh for more than forty years, I find them unsurpassed, especially in night reading. ISAAC HILL.

[From M. G. Kerr, M. D., Norristown, Pa.]
I do most willingly bear my testimony in favor of the superiority of the Patent Parabola over all other kinds of Spectacles. They are constructed upon the best established and understood principles of Optics, and their adaptation to the human Eye in its different conditions of vision is so perfect as to render sight easy without effort. In my opinion, none others should be used, since the Eyes once used to these do not seem to grow old, and by having a focus at any point of the surface they appear to restore the eyes to their youthful energy. M. G. KERR, M. D.

[From Isaac Heister, M. D., Reading, Pa.]
I have for several years worn the Patent Parabola Spectacles, and have found them decidedly superior to the Spectacle glasses heretofore in use.
ISAAC HEISTER, M. D.

☞Should the focus of these Glasses, after making trial of them, be found not adapted to the sight, purchasers are particularly requested to have them changed until suited.

MONDAY, MARCH, 16, 1874.

It was now our ill-luck to be astonished at seeing a lot of wild geese flying over our heads, all in a row, of course, and looking as if firing the ramrod at them would be attended with better results than using shot—"getting 'em all ready spitted for cooking," as Rawe remarked. The temptation of following these over the moor was to great for the Oxonian, and we saw no more of him until the following morning, when we heard that he had evinced a strong desire, on his return to the hotel, to go to bed with his boots on—a proceeding at which mine host was scandalized, and the entire establishment astonished.

Where the woodcocks are plentiful, it matters not much what kind of good-working spaniel you may use, provided he be steady; but in the West, the Clumber, though very handsome—being of the highly prized lemon and white color—is not much patronized, because of his muteness a qualification not desirable in thick covert. Welsh cocker is one of the best of this division, being of good size, with strong loins, capital legs and feet, and an excellent nose. The coat is very slightly curled on the body, but the ear and legs are feathered, the tail being very nearly bare of hair. These dogs are still extensively used in Wales for the purpose of hunting the cocks, which are to be met with in the Principality in large numbers during the season, and form one of the chief attractions to the shooter. The Devonshire cocker closely resembles the Welsh dog, both being of a deep liver color. Liver color has always been the favorite one for spaniels and for retrievers on game wherever I have been, and the quotation I have made from "Stonehenge on the Dog" exactly describes the best kind of spaniel for woodcock shooting. Of the manner of breaking for covert hunting the same author gives excellent advice, which, however, I do not feel justified in extracting, but its perusal will well be worth the attention of the sportsman.

On our road homewards we encountered a flight of cocks, which we counted, as they dropped-in in pairs, to the number of eighteen brace. On the following morning, concluding that these had taken up their abode in the well-known wood, we followed them up, but could not flush a single bird, their ravenous appetite after a long fast probably compelling them to take up more spongy quarters. Capital sport was had with them, however, a day or two afterwards. Perhaps I have made too light of the crime of taking a stray shot or two without credentials; but so far from applauding or defending this conduct, I will concede with this "caution," which I have just read in a country newspaper: "On Thursday a minor having had permission to shoot over some lands near the Town Mills, provided himself with a gun, and went out for that purpose. Not possessing a ten-shilling lisence, in order to evade the law he carried the gun, which was loaded, under his coat. This reckless proceeding was soon the cause of the discharge of the gun, which shattered the poor fellow's leg in such a frightful manner that, on a consultation with three medical gentlemen, immediate amputation was deemed to be necessary." Poor fellow! it was a very inglorious result of the generous offer to shoot over the lands near the Town Mills, for at their best they could have produced nothing beyond a landrail, a snipe, and a flock of starlings!

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES.

The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC, and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea-weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food, and prevents souring. It assists the digestion, by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

Dr. Schenck can be consulted at the Quincy House, Boston, on Wednesday, March 25th, April 8th and 22nd, May 13th and 27th.

Advice will be given free, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer, the charge is $5.00.

Schenck's Medicines are sold by all Druggists throughout the country.

Schenck's Almanac can be had of all Druggists free.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, which does not dry up a cough and leave the cause behind, but loosens it, cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
